In a world with 1,21 billion English speakers, it is estimated that 96% of conversations have at least one non-native speaking participant. While English has become a way for multinational professionals to connect, effective communication skills extend far beyond language proficiency. To successfully and confidently work and lead in English, one must also be able to understand, identify, and navigate cultural nuances, patterns, norms, and behaviors. This aspect of intercultural communication is frequently missed or underestimated in the workplace leaving diverse talent unrecognized and untapped.

Designed for both native and non-native speakers, Mastering Clarity, Impact & Narrative (MCIN) equips individuals and leaders with the core skills to increase interpersonal effectiveness, minimize cultural gaps and connect more intentionally. Participants will explore and reframe commonly experienced and held assumptions about English language proficiency while honing their abilities to speak clearly and with impact all while leveraging the power of narrative. This program provides practical strategies and enhances leadership skills through real-world application and feedback.

This program offers a cohort-based experience consisting of 4, 2-hour live virtual sessions that focus on:

- Increasing self-awareness and moving beyond limiting beliefs.
- Boosting confidence and influence while communicating, presenting, and speaking publicly.
- Increasing clarity and enhancing impact and visibility.
- Harnessing the power of story and narrative to engage and involve others.
- Unlocking leadership capabilities to increase individual and team resonance and effectiveness.

In addition to live virtual sessions (recordings will be available), participants will benefit from guided reflections and access to 32 supplementary self-paced audio lessons.
